The annual ICAST is a tradition initiated 19 years ago by the Chinese American professionals in the Greater Chicago area. This annual gathering provides an international forum for presentations and discussions of a) the latest developments and trends in telecommunications and related technologies and b) future financial models in idealistic economic topography. Scientists, industrial practitioners as well as policy makers come together for a full day of the free exchange of ideas with the aim to promote cross-field interactions and collaboration among academic and industrial participants. This year's meeting will be held on September 10, 2005, at Chicago State University's Student Union Building at 9501 S. King Dr., Chicago, IL 60628. This year's program will focus on "Advances in Telecommunications, Computing and Striving for Economic & Financial Goal." The program will cover, but is not limited to, the following two topics:
